On the Relationship between Grammar Comprehension in Verb Tense Usage and Translation among Iranian

Teaching grammar in translation has always been given some concern by the practitioners of TEFL. While it seems more commitment has been given to this task, yet there is still room for more attention to methods of grammar instruction in translation which can help learners practice grammar through working on a combination of meaning and form which make grammar learning more meaningful. Participants' grammar comprehension of verb tense usage in the field of translation was measured by Translational Trajectory Orientation Scale (TJOS).
